Generally, a large (broad, tall, or buff) attractive man, who tends to be not very bright, but usually extremely nice and respectful. Think Kronk from The Emperors New Groove, or maybe a golden retriever. That guy is totally a himbo, he's super nice but maybe don't try to have a deep philosophical conversation with him.

Hedgehogging offers us telling glimpses of the characters that populate the hedge-fund world, and the unremitting daily pressure of running a marked-to-market hedge fund. We read about "Richard," a successful manager who had a bad habit of touting his stocks to other managers while selling as they bought, and "Grinning Gilbert" a red-hot hedge ...

How John Maynard Keynes Started Hedgehogging In its simplest form, hedging consists of shorting a long position with leveraged credit in an attempt to “beat the market” averages. The first hedgehogger in the U.S. was Alfred Jones, who set up a long/short fund in 1940 to invest for his wife, and eventually opened it
